AN Hung-chun (1344/5281/0193), who was in charge of instruction in the staff section of the Liaison Department of the North Korean Labor Party, stated in conversation with members of the North Korean Labor Party that if no armistice had been signed and United Nations troops had not been withdrawn from Korea by June 1953, the Soviet government was planning to send Soviet troops to Korea. AN Hung-chun went to Leningrad for a 3-month course of instruction and then returned to P'yongyang.
